

Help shape the future of assistive technology!

Synfonica LLC is seeking volunteers to participate in a trial of its innovative expressive text-to-speech technology, being developed for a project funded in part by the National Institutes of Health.

In the trial, participants will be provided with an app that runs on an iPad or iPhone that they can use for their daily communication. The app's voices will enable users to sound happy, sad, angry, neutral, and more!

Participants will be able to provide regular feedback on how the voices suit their communication needs, which Synfonica will use to improve the technology. Synfonica will work closely with all participants to answer any questions they may have about the app and respond to their feedback.

The ideal participant will be able to type what they wish to say on a touch screen, but other participants may be able to be accommodated, as the app lets users save and replay frequently used utterances. Caregivers and clinicians working with participants will also have the opportunity to provide regular feedback. The participant must have an iPad or iPhone that runs iOS 15 or higher.

If you may be interested or have questions, please contact us at info@synfonicaspeech.com or 607-273-7086. Information about Synfonica can be found at www.synfonicaspeech.com.